

YOU KNOW YOU'VE BEEN IN ROTC TOO LONG WHEN....

- You polish your Nikes.
- You look forward to PT.
- You sing “Jodies” in the shower.
- You wear your uniform to church.
- You square corners going to class.
- You get insurance for your uniform.
- You “square” your meals in the cafeteria.
- You call your girlfriend by her last name.
- You start putting everything in acronyms.
- You tell your girlfriend’s mother “Yes, Sir.”
- You shave your head to look like the Sarge.
- You ask teachers if you can go to the latrine.
- You repeat the Colonel’s jokes to your friends.
- You shout “At Ease!” to your annoying brother.
- You keep calling your math class to “Attention.”
- You start using 2200 in reference to your curfew.
- You make yourself do pushups when you tell a lie.
- You jump to attention when your alarm clock rings.
- You get “in step” with friends walking down the hall.
- You constantly check your gig line, even in civilian clothes.
- You burn a copy of the Air Force Song to your favorite CD.
- You hum “When Johnny Comes Marching Home,” in the halls.
- You stand at parade rest when other teachers call you to their desk.
- You wear a bracelet that bears the initials WWSD (What Would Sarge Do).
- You set aside a certain portion of your allowance to pay for the flight caps you keep losing.
- And finally, when reading this list you realize, “Hey, I’M ALL that and more!”
