Law placement expert speaks to Washburn law students

TOPEKA Kan.—On February 22, 2006, Jeff Goodman, manager of the legal division of Spencer Reed Group, spoke to members of legal fraternity Phi Delta Alpha at Washburn University in Topeka, Kan., The speech was originally scheduled only for Phi Delta Alpha chapter members but was opened to the entire Washburn University School of Law. Goodman spoke about issues students will face after graduation. His speech included such topics as how to interview, first year expectations, non-lawyer positions and salary ranges. About 40-60 students varying from first year to third year attended the event.

Lindsey Patmon, Phi Alpha Delta justice, helped organize the event.
“Mr. Goodman's presentation to the law students was very informative. I don't think many of us were aware that such a legal placement service existed, let alone that the costs of his services are covered by the employers and not imputed to those searching for employment.”

Goodman has been working in the placement business for eight years. In the past, he has worked and helped place major players in large law firms such as Blackwell Sanders Peper Martin LLP, Lewis Rice & Fingersh LC, Husch & Eppenberger LLC. Goodman also placed Bob Terry as general counsel for KC Southern Railroad and placed an assistant general counsel at Garmin International.

Spencer Reed is a top placement agency based in Overland Park, Kan., and operates 23 offices in ten states.
